A student may not take more than one of the courses through the distance learning mode during the summer.

IMPORTANT NOTES:

- Students who are currently on academic probation, or have been on academic probation, must have their schedules approved by Professor Mary Purvis. Forms are available in Judy Burnett's office (room 105) or at http://law.mc.edu/current-students/student-services/records/. A hold has been placed on the student account which will prohibit registration. The hold will be removed when the approved schedule is submitted to Judy Burnett.

- No student on academic probation will be allowed to enroll in or otherwise benefit from any intersession or summer school course of study. If you are currently on academic probation, you may not participate in the pre-registration process for any intersession course. You may participate in the pre-registration process for summer school (once your approved schedule has been received); however, if you are not removed from probation at the end of the spring semester, you will be withdrawn from any summer school class with a refund of tuition and fees. If you are currently in good standing, but your cumulative GPA falls below 2.00 after spring 2014 grades are processed, you will be withdrawn from any intersession or summer school classes with a refund of tuition and fees.

- Maximum hours for the summer term:
  - Students taking Trial Practice intersession and regular summer session courses may take up to 10 hours combined.
  - All other students taking summer session courses may take up to 8 hours if they are not working. You must have permission from the Associate Dean for more than 6 hours.
  - Students taking 6 hours may work a maximum of 20 hours.
  - Students taking less than 6 hours may work full time.
