The Mississippi College School of Law, popularly known as MC Law, is one of seven schools within the university known as Mississippi College. The university is accredited by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools to award the Juris Doctor degree and the LL.M. Located in Jackson, MC Law is accredited by the American Bar Association and is a member of the Association of American Law Schools and the International Association of Law Schools.

MC Law began educating future attorneys in 1930 as the Jackson School of Law, a night school for working professionals who wished to become attorneys.

In 1975, the law school became a part of Mississippi College, the oldest university in the state. Combining a practical legal education with Christian principles, the law school has since become a premier legal center for the South.

The Law School enrolled 365 full-time students in the fall of 2021 and employs 28 full-time faculty members, an associate dean, an assistant dean, librarians, and a dedicated support staff. Because of MC Law's location in the capital city of Jackson, teaching in the Law School is augmented by a number of distinguished adjunct professors from the legal community. MC Law has earned a substantial reputation for legal scholarship and community service.

Jackson, Mississippi

VISITJACKSON.COM

MC Law is located in downtown Jackson, which is Mississippi's capital city and the heart of the state's legal community. The Jackson metro area offers unparalleled access to the legal community, where 48% of the attorneys in Mississippi are located.

The State Capitol, Mississippi Supreme Court, federal courts, and many of Mississippi's most respected law firms are within walking distance of the MC Law campus.

MC Law offers unlimited student opportunities for part-time work, clerkships, and hands-on externships with law firms, public interest organizations, government agencies, and leading companies. Unlike students at more isolated law schools, MC Law students gain in-depth, practical experience in the legal field long before they graduate.

The law school's strategic location also puts students in the right place to interact with lawyers, judges, and other legal experts, many of whom visit the campus as speakers or teach classes as adjunct professors. The Mississippi legal community has embraced MC Law; the support of these legal professionals helps MC Law students become superior lawyers.

Home to 450,000 residents, the capital city combines the amenities of a large city with the warmth and welcome of a small town. Jackson is home to numerous museums, music venues, restaurants, and shopping areas. If a longer getaway is in order, Jackson is located halfway between Memphis, Tennessee, and New Orleans, Louisiana.

The MC Law campus is a showplace in the center of downtown Jackson and a legal center for all of Mississippi. MC Law recently completed a $9 million construction and renovation project that included the latest advancements in classroom and courtroom technology. The School of Law operates with an $8 million annual budget and is debt-free.
