

MC Law Family,

In light of recent events and the statement made by the R. Jess Brown Chapter of Black Law Students Association, we the undersigned student organizations release the following statement:

The recent deaths of Ahmaud Arbery, Breonna Taylor, and George Floyd, along with countless others throughout history have devastated the nation and our communities. These events highlight the ongoing plights of African Americans yearning for equality and justice. Like all of you, we are saddened and frustrated.

With that being said, we are recommitting ourselves to inclusivity, diversity, and justice at MC Law. We are committing to listen to the challenges of our Black colleagues on campus. We are committing to do our part in making sure our community is safe and welcoming. We are committing to standing with you in pursuing liberty and justice for all. We are committing to upholding our institution's belief that "human beings are God's creations, equally entitled to dignity and respect."

Black lives matter.
